The proprietors of the Rekford Line would particularly call the attention of the Merchants of Wisconsin, Illinois, and other Western and South-western Sintes to the superior facilities of their line for transportation to, and from, the ports on the Upper Lakes. The above line of Steam boats runs direct to our Dock, at Buffalo, and all goods contracted by this line for the Upper Lakes will be shipped (under Sophers) with but one, or possibly two exceptions.
The Leiford is the only Line not interested in, or connitted to, a Frageller Upper Lake Luc; and in endeworing to sustain a line of Steamboots on that route, the Proprietors inport to receive the support and patronage of the Merchants of the Wistern Spites, when interest demands

NEW YORK MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION, Union Springs, N. Y.

THIS Association is formed for the mutual relief of its incumbers in case of sickness or accident. A careful examination of its principles, and its beneficent objects, is respectfully solicited. The character and standing of the Board of Directors is a guaranty that the money received will be safely preserved, and faltifully devoded to the objects proposed. The progress of HEALTH INSURANCE, within the past few years, in localities where its principles have been understood, and its beneficent results practically seen and felt, is unparabelled.

Men are literally binding themselves together to hear one another's burdens. No kind of Insurance can be so generally useful as that of Health; for most people are dependent upon it as the explicitly which enables them to procure the means of fivellhood. Hence, when by disease or architon this is gone, all is gone; and effect an unpleasant dependence on friends, or powerly and parajection, is the consequence. It is not presumed that accident or the ravages of disease can be prevented; but by a wise forethought, a fountation may be provided, which, when the hand of affliction does come, will soften its aspectics, and secure a comfortable support for poursel or simily.

His son was, I concluded, either dead or dying, and ho was thus bewilderedly casting about for means of keeping the terrible, perhaps fatal tidings from his wife. I afterwards heard that he left Elm Park in a postennise, about two hours after I came away, unattended by a single serrant!

He was gone three clear days only, at the end of which he returned with Mrs. Damby and—his son—in florid health, too, and one of the finest babies of its age—about nine weeks old—I had ever seen. Thus vanished the mir-drawn Dombting Castle and Ginnt Despair which I had so has tily conjured up! The cause assigned by Mr. Arbethnot for the agitation I had witnessed, was deriblets the true one; and yet, and the thought hanneld me for months, venir afterwards, he opened only one letter that morning, and had sent a message to his wife that the child was well.

Mrs. Danby remained at the Park till the little Robert was weaned, and then was dismissed, very manifecently rewarded. Year after year rolled away without bringing Mr. and Mrs. Arbuthnot any additional little ones, and no one, therefore, could feel surprised at the enthusiastic love of the delighted mother for her handsome, nobly-promising boy. But that which did actouish me, the no one else, for it seemed that I alone noticed it, was a strange defect of character which began to develope itself in Mr. Arbuthnot. He was positively jealous of his wife's affection for their owe child! Many and many a time I have remarked, when he thought himself motherer gusting love for her first and only born! It was altogether a mystery to me, and I as much as possible forbore to dwell upon the subject.

Instant only sorn: It was antogether a mystery to me, and I as much as possible forbore to dwell upon the subject.

Nice years passed away without bringing any material change to the parties involved in this marrative, except those which time brings ordinarily in his tain. Young Robert Arbuthnot was a healthy, rall, fine looking lad of his age; and his great-grandpaps, the rector, though not suffering under my actual physical or mental infarmity, had reached a time of life when the animous error that the golden bowl is braken, or the street conditions in the street a fashion. The secondarive miller ment have made good use of the gift to his wife for hereare of little Arbuthnat, for he had built a gented house near the mill, always rode a valuable horse, kept, it was said, a capital table; and all this, as it seemed, by his clever speculations in con and floor, for the ordinary business of the mill was almost entiated. cheer speculations in con and loar, for the ordi-lary business of the mill was almost entirely neglected. He had no children of his own, but he had apparently taken, with much cordiality, to his step son, a fine had, now about eighteen years of age. This greatly grieved the bow's mo-tion, who dreaded above all things that her son should contract the evil, dissolute habits of his father-in-law. Latterly, she had become extreme-ly solicitous to procure the had a permanent situ-stion abroad, and this Mr. Arbuthnot had promis-ed should be effected at the earliest opportunity. The second affairs on the 16th of October, 1846. Mr. Arbuthnot was temporarily absent in Ireland The steed affairs on the 16th of October, 1846. Mr. Arbuthnet was temperarily absent in Ireland, where he possessed a large property, and was making personal inquiries as to the extent of the pocato rot, not long before amounted. The morning's post had brought a letter to his wife, with the intelligence that he should reach home that you aroning; and as the vectors was on the that vory evening; and as the rectory was on the direct read to Elm Park, and her husband would be sure to pull up there, Mrs. Arbithnot came with her son to pass the afternoon there, and in some slight degree anticipate her husband's arri-

About three o'clock, a chief clerk of one of the Tameter busks rode up in a little gig to the rectory, and asked to see the Rev. Mr. Townley, on pressing and important business. He was unbread into the library, where the rector and I were at the mement rather busily ongaged. The clerk said he had been to Elm Park, but not find-ing either Mr. Arbutnot or his lade there he had ing either Mr. Arbathnot or his lady there, he had thought that perhaps the Rev. Mr. Townley might inought that perhaps the Rev. Mr. Townley might be able to pronounce upon the genuineness of a chequa for £300, purporting to be drawn on the £auten bank, by Mr. Arbuthnot, and which Danby, the miller, had obtained cash for at Bath. He further added that the bank had refused payment, and detained the cheque, believing it to be a forger; "A forger; "exclaimed the rector, after merely observed at the december 1. ly glancing at the document. "No question that it is, and a very clumsily executed one too. Bestides Mr. Arbuthnot is not yet returned from Iretide, Mr. Arbutinot is not yet returned from freed."

This was sufficient; and the messenger, with scany applogies for his intrasion, withdrew, and hastened beat to Taunton. We were still talking ever this said affair, although some hours had clapsed since the clerk's departure—in fact, candless had been brought in, and we were every marriant expecting Mr. Arbutinot—when the sound of a horse at a hasty gallop was heard approaching, and presently the pale and haggard face of Danby short by the window at which the rector and mosself were standing. The gate-bell was and injacil were standing. The gate-bell was rung almost immediately afterwards, and but a brief interval passed before "Mr. Danby" was announced to be in waiting. The servant had hardly gained the passage with leave to show him in, when the imparient visitor rushed rudely into the recom, in a first of a feet and the case in a first of a feet and the case.

when the imparient visitor rushed rudely into the room, in a state of great, and it seemed angry excitement.

"What, sir, is the meaning of this ill-mannered intrasion?" demanded the nector, sternly.

"Yan havo pronounced the cheque I paid away at Balt to be a lorgery; and the others are, I am told, aiready at my facts. Mr. Arbuthnot, unfortunately, is not at home, and I am come, therefore to seek shelter with you."

"Shelter with me, sir!" exclaimed the indignant rector, moving, as he spoke, towards the Bell. "Out of my house you shall go this instant."

The fellow placed his hand upon the reverend gentleman's arm, and looked with his blood-hot eyes keenly in his face.

"Don't'" said Damby—"don't, for the sake of yourself and yours! Don't! I warn you; or, if you like the phrase better, don't, for the sake of me and mine."

month for Bonday. I sent her the news two borns since."

"Hat 1 sthat indeed so?" cried Danby, with an irrepressible start of alarm. "Why, then—But no matter; here, luckily, comes Mrs. Arbuthnot and her son. All's right! She will, I know, stand bail for me, and, if need be, acknowledge the genuineness of her husband's cheque."

"The follow's insolence was becoming unbearable, and I was about to seize and thrust him forcibly from the apartment, when the sound of wheels was beard outside. "Hold! one trement," he cried, with fierce vehenence. "That is probably the officers. I must be brief, then, and to the purpose. Pray, madam, do not leave the room, for your own sake. As for you, young sir, I command you to remain."

"What! what does he me mean?" exclaimed Mrs. Arbuthnet, bewilderedly, and at the same time clasping her son—who gazed on Danby with kindled oyes, and angry boyish defiance—tightly to her wide. Did the man's strange words give form and rignificance to some dark, shadowy, indistinct doubt that had previously haunted her at times? I judged so. The rector appeared similarly confused and chaken, and had sunk nerve-less and terrified upon a sofs.

"You guessdouly, I see, at what I have to say," resumed Danby, with a malignant sneer. "Well, loar it, then, once for all, and then, if you will, give me up to the officers. "Some years ago," he continued, colly and steadily—"some years ago a woman, a nurse, was placed in charge of two infant-children, both boys: one of these was her own, the other was the son of tich, proud parents. The woman's hesband was a gay, jolly fellow, who made nothered spending money to earning it, and just then it happened that the was more than usually hard up. One afternoon on visiting his wife, who had removed to a distance, he found that the rich man's child had sickened of the small pox, and that there was no chance of its recovery.

A letter containing the sad news was on the table which he, the hu-band, rook the liberty to open and read. After some reflection, suggested by what he had heard of the larty mother's state of unind, he re-copied the letter, in other's state or mind, he re-copied the letter, for the sake of embodying in it a certain suggestion. That letter was duly posted, and the next day brought the rich man almost in a state of distraction; both his chief and mastering terror was lest the mother of the already dead infant should hear, in her then rich man almost in a state of distraction; but his chief and mastering terror was lest the mother of the already dead infour should hear, in her then precarious state, of what had happened. The tidings, he was sure, would kill hear. Seeing this, the cunning husband of the nurse, suggested that, for the present, his—the cunning one's—child might be taken to the lady as her own, and that the truth could be revealed when she was strong enough to hear it. The rich man fell into the artiful tunp, and that which the hut band of the nurse had speculated upon, came to pass even beyond his hopes. The lady grew to idolize her faucied child—she has, fortunately, had no other—and now, I think it would really kill her to part with him. The rich man could not find it in his heart to undeceive his wife. Every year it became more difficult, more impossible to do so; and very generously. I must say, has he paid in purse for the forbearance of the nurse was Mrs. Damby; the rich, weak husband, Mr. Arbuthnot; the substituted child—that handsome boy—may son i?"

A wild scream from Mrs. Arbuthnot; the substituted child—that handsome boy—may son i?"

A wild scream from Mrs. Arbuthnot is frightful revelation, echoed by an agonised cry, half tendences, half rage, from her husband, who had entered the room unobserved, and now clasged her pastionately in his arms. The caringe-wheels we had heard were his. It was long before I could readl with calminess the tunult, terror, and confusion of that scene. Mr. Arbuthnot strore to bear his wife from the apartment, but she would not be forced away, and kept implering with frenzied vehemence that, Robert—that her boy—abould not be baken from her.

"I have no wish to do so—far from it," said Damby, with gleeful caultation. "Only folk must be reasonable, and not threaten their friends with the hulks—""

"Give him anything, anything "broke in the unhappy lady. "O Robert! Robert! she added, with a renewed burst of hysterical griof, "how could you deceive me so?"

"I have been punished, Agues," he Aus

"The acknowledgment of the fittle out of paper in dispute, of course; and, ray a genuine one to the same amount."

"Yea, yea," exclaimed Mrs. Arbuthnot, still wildly sobbing, and holding the terrified boy strained in her embrace, as if she feared he might be wrenched from her by force. "Anything—pay him anything."

At this moment, chancing to look towards the door of the apartment, I saw that it was partially opened, and that Danby's wife was listening there. What might that mean? But what of helpful meaning in such a case could it have?

"Be it so, love," said Mr. Arbuthnot, soothingly. "Danby, call to-morrow at the Park. And now, begone at once."

"I was thinking," resumed the rascal, with swelling audacity, "that we might as well at the same time come to same permanent arrangement upon black and white. But never mind, I can always put the screw or unless, indeed, you get thed of the young gentleman, and in that case, I doubt not, he will prove a dutiful and affectionate son—Ah, devil! What do you here? Begone, or I'd marder you? Begone, do you hear?"

His wife had entered, and silently confronted him.

"Your theaux call man," voiled the woman.

"Your threats, evil man," replied the woman for monow. My son i

"Your threats, evil man," replied the woman, quietly, "have no terrors for me now. My son is beyond your reach. Oh, Mrs. Arbuthnot," she added, turning towards and addressing that lady, "holiver not—"

Her bushand sprang at her with the board of a panther, "Shence! Go home or PII strangie—" life own utterance was arrested by the flere grasp of Mr. Arbuthnot, who seized him by the throat, and harled him to the further end of the room, "Speak on, woman; and quick! whim have you to say 2.2."
"That your son, correst lady," she answered, inrowing herself at Mrs. Arbuthnot's feet, "is as truly your own child assets so hom of years 12.

arrowing nersell at Mr. Arbeilmou's feet, "is as truly year own child as ever son born of weman !"
The short of half-fearful triumph seems even new as I write to ring in my cars! I felt that the woman's words were words of truth, but I could not see distinctly: the room whiled round, for the ord; and the lights denoted before a continuous as a second many and the lights denoted before a continuous and the light denoted before a continuo could not see distinctly; the room whiled round, and the lights danced before my eyes, but I could bear through all the choling exacty of the mother, and the fury of the bailed felon.

"The letter," continued Mrs. Damby, "which my husband found and opened, would have informed you, sir, of the swiftly approaching death of my child, and that yours had been carefully kept beyond the reach of contagion. The letter you received was written without my knowledge or consent. Thue it is that, terrified by my hasband's, threats, and in some measure reconciled to the wicked imposition by knowing that, after all, the right child would be in his right place, I afterwards lont myself to Damby's evil purposes. But I chiefly feared whom I fully believed he would not have scrupled to make away with in revenge for my exposing his profitable fraud. I have sinced; I can hardly hope to be forgiven, but I have now told the secred truth."

All this was uttered by the repentant woman, but at the time it was almost wholly unleard by those most interested in the statement. They only comprehended that they were saved—that the child was theirs in very tunth. Great, shoundant, but for the moment, bewildering joy! Mr. Arbuthnot—his beautiful young wife—her own true boy (how could she for a moment have doubted that he was her own true bay!—you might read that though through all her terrs, thickly as they fell)—tho aged and half-stunned rector, whilst yet Mrs. Danby was speaking, were exclaiming, sobbing in cach other's arms, ay, and passing God too, with broken voices and incaherent works it may be, but certainly with fervent, poor, grateful hearts.

IRELAND. The Limerick Chronicle thus refe to some recent arrangements made on the English railways for the convenience of the Irish fatners:

"Extensive arrangements are making at Holylead for the Irish cattle trade, in connection with need for the fish cattle trade, in connection with the railways at both sides of the channel. These arrangements are calculated to give an impulse to the rearing and fattening of Cattle in Ireland, by opening up new sources of demand for cattle, sheep, dec, and the Holyhead Railway Company, teching the importance of their interests, are in-curring an additional expenditure of £50,000 at Holyhead, to affect the necessary accommodation to the fish trade;

Lege Schart, Van Dieman's Land,
My Dear Duffy: In great haste I have sat down to tell you that I am determined to withdraw no parole—throw up my "ticket of leave"—and afterwards attempt my escape.
I seek some land in which a useful and honorable career will be open to me, and where, free from the galling restrictions which beset and hamper me at every step, and the yet more galling indignities which intrude themselves even into the sanctuary of my humble house, I may find generous and excitable employment for whatever energies I possess through the goodness of God.
With fervent hope that, with his aid and blessing.
I shall have the delight of writing my next letter to you under the shadow and protection of the flag of Washington, and with fondest rememhamee to Maurice Leyne and all my other dear and devoted friends, believe me, my dear Duffy, ever to remain, whatever may be my fate,
Your faithful and affectionate friend,

The new revolving piston engine which was invented and build in this place by Gen. Wooster Harrison, has been thoroughly examined and tested by several of the most scientific and practical engineers in the west, and pronounced by them to be the greatest improvement upon steam power that has as yet them made. They think it has greater power and will cost not more than two-thirds as much to run it as the common piston engine. It is evident to any one that it is much have complicated, and will cost only about one-half as much as the common engine.

We understand that preparations are making to build an engine after this model of the capacity of 20 loose power. We think there can be no doubt of this being the engine of engines.—Pt. Washender.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 19, 1852. Rufus King, Wm. H. Watson & John, S. Fillmore PROPRIETORS.

RUFUS KING & CO. THE WRIG CONVENTION.

The Convention doubtless halloted last night but we could receive no news of it. The adoption of the Compromise Platform in the afternoon harmoniously, and its introduction by John M Clayton, himself more than half a northern man, indicates that the platform must be anything but an offensive "finality"-and also indicates Gen' Scott's nomination as the most likely. Which to Believe ?

Gen'l Pierce, during his whole Congressional cureer spoke, labored, and voted against any and all sorts of appropriations for internal improvements; but, says the News :

Here a man spends his whole public life in consistent opposition to Western inerests, is nominated for a President on a platform which denies Western rights, by a party which has for years defeated Western harbor and river bills-and his partizans expect to succeed in headwinking the people by saying that, after such a life, "Gen'l Pierce's friends are nothorized to pledge bim" to the pursuit of a totally different We do not doubt, for a moment, that Mr. Pierce's friends are authorized to make such a pledge, or any other, the different sorts being percelled out in lots to suit the gulls who will take them; but we ask the people of the West which is their best reliance-a man's course through political life, or a pledge made by "his friends" after he is nominated for an office?

FORTH OF JULY AND RAILBOADS .- The committee, appointed at a meeting in Janesville to collect funds for celebrating the 4th, reported that with few exceptions, those who will receive the most pecuniary benefit have either released to contribute at all, or have subscribed sums wholly disproportioned to the benefit to be received, and concluded their report with the following re solution :

Resolved. That this joint committee decline the duties devolved upon them, feeling neither the inclination, nor seeing the obligation to assume a heavy personal responsibility for those who intend to reap all the profits without incurring any of the expense of the celebration.

We commend the action of the Janesville comlittee to the special attention of those of our citiens who are to reap the pecuniary benefit of the celebration here. They will be visited by the Finance Committee, and there is but one way to coure their own interests, i.e.; by paying liberally in advance. By the way, the Jancaville Standard ascribes

e failure of their committee to another cause, viz: The project of a Railroad communication from this place to Milw ukee, has distracted and in fact absorbed the whole attention of our citizens, which they think will ultimately absorb the content of this pulse also which they think will ultimately absorb the con-tents of their puckets also.

This is indeed a crisis—an era in the history of Janesville, long to be remembered for weal or for woe, and it is not surprising that on inhabitant-view it as such. With but few exceptions our people are disposed to do their utmost to accom-plish the construction of this Ball road, which would be so creditable to themselves and so vital-ly important to the interests of our town and county.

HENRY CLAY, We received yesterliny a copy of the Kanesville (Mo.) Frontier Geordian of May 28th. It announces the death of HENRY CLAY, and copies from the Liberty Tribing the following paragraph:

Henry Clay is Dead :--We learn by a private individual from Weston that the news of the death of the great Sage of Ashland was received by telegraph at that place yesterday. We do not know the day or particular attending his death. Henry Clay! the greatest of statesmon is dead, and millions of his countrymen deplote his departure from the ranks of the living to the chambers of the dead; but his name and fune will grow brighter as ages advance, and generations yet unborn will lisp with reverence the name of the great statesman of the 19th cenury. STRAMBOAT POLITICS,-A correspondent of the Detroit Advertiser, writes as follows from Dunkirk, after a pleasant trip in the Lady Elgin : Politics forms the topic of conversation among all travellers, and those upon the "Lady Elgin" formed no exception. A spirited conversation between half a dozen gentlemen collected in the Cabin, among whom was a Barnburner from Rome, New York; S. L. R., of Milwankee, now a Loco Feco, but once on a time, a Detroit whig; and Alderman C., of the First Ward;—led to taking a vote last evening, which resulted as follows.

This vote comprised firemen, deck-hands, and all on board, except about twenty persons who were not voters. There is much warmth and interest already aroused, and there is little doubt that a fortunate nomination by the Whig Convention of Wednesday, whose deliberations I hope to witness, will be received with an enthusiasm equal to that of 1240. In taking the vote among the passengers of the "Lady Elgin," every lady or board declared for the Whig ticket, and one may be an extracted that she thought herself entitled to name her randidate, as she had fonteen sons, all of whom would vote for the Whig candidate, it they lived till November! Washington, June 11

At the Fillmere gathering on Saturday evening there were present more than fifty Southern Fillmore delegates, and addresses were delivated by all 27-es firm Florids, Alabama Georgia, Virgina, and other southern states.

The expression of teching in five of Mr Fillmore was ardent and unanimous. They manifested a determination to small first and list by him or some other compromise man and sound whig. Hey declared then purpe e to be first chelly to rouse a recognition from the minoral Whig Convention of the finality of the compromise, and, secondly to resist and defeat the nomination of Georgia are gained an ambiguous course on the question which is so what to the south. They declared that Gen Scott could not obtain a solitary electoral vote from the sharkolding states. Except Delaware.

Senator Dawson of Georgia, who was one of the speakers was itrained every violent declaring strongly for all critical deep and wide it Gen Scott is nominated."

This is the tone of nearly all the southern delegates row here and it is to be strengthened by some future concert of action among them. They are to have a Meeting in Bottone to before compined convention to agric upon their course which will be as above strend—to demand the adoption of resolutions in support of the compromise prior are to have a lifeting in Billing to before Long-into Convention to agree upon their course which will be as above stated—to demand the adoption of resolutions in support of the compromise prior to any nonmation, and then go against Gen Scott or for Mr. Fillingre of some Wing standing with him openly on the compromise ground, with the compromise men.

sustain a lieavy loss in the event of their yard be coming overflown. Good judges in such matters think it will be two or three months before the water will fall to its usual level. The volume of water in lake Horicon wes immense. The sies ecovered by the lake is much larger than we stated it to be last week being not far from 75 000 acres.

Susty hours after the dam gave was the fall water, one inleadove did not exceed one inch—Ot course it will take a long time for this water to escape through an opening no larger thun that now made in the dam. Then again the water will recede very slowly slowly from the tens of thousands of acres of low lands which have been overflown. The action of an August or Septem sun upon these lands, after having been so long inundated, must, we think create considerable suckease. Waterform Chronicle.
